

Community of LINDSAY

Cradled in the foothills of the Sierras, surrounded by the world's best producing farmland, alive with history and culture, lies Lindsay, "the heartbeat of the Central Valley." This charming, sophisticated and beautiful city is known throughout the world for its famous olives and orange groves.

Lindsay is a unique blend of the past and present, whether it's business suits or blue jeans...people from all walks of life can find an environment to suit their lifestyles. The city itself is alive with community spirit, featuring street festivals, theater, museums, murals, parades, and a vibrant Friday Night Farmers' Market. Lindsay is a city of timeless treasures and sophisticated services.

Lindsay's beautiful and recently renovated downtown is rich in history and offers a delightful shopping and browsing experience. Near downtown is the McDermont Field House, the premier sports and entertainment destination in the Valley. Originally a fruit packing house, the McDermont Field House has been transformed into a state-of-the-art, 172,000 square foot venue where families can spend time together, be active, and have fun. Lindsay also features brand new Aquatic and Wellness Centers next to the recently renovated City Park, and a newly constructed downtown Library, near City Hall.

Take a moment to explore Lindsay and discover the beauty, culture, and people that make Lindsay the place to be in the Central Valley. Check out our website for more information about the opportunities available in Lindsay.
